ORAL JUDGMENT

Learned AGP Shri Poojari places on record the affidavit in reply.

2. In the present petition, the petitioner has challenged the order of detention dated 3.1.2007 passed by the Commissioner of Police, Vadodara City in exercise of powers under section 3(1) of the Gujarat Prevention of Anti-Social Activities Act, 1985 (“PASA” for short).

3. The Detaining Authority in order to come to the conclusion that the activities of the petitioner are prejudicial to public order and that to prevent breach thereof, it is necessary to place him under detention, has placed reliance on the involvement of the petitioner in one isolated incident of breach of the Bombay Prohibition Act. Solely on this single incident and on the basis of the material collected by the Investigating Agency while inquiring into the offence, the detaining authority formed an opinion that detention of the petitioner is necessary to prevent breach of public order.

4. The learned advocate for the petitioner has submitted that opinion was formed without any basis and that solely on account of involvement of the petitioner in one isolated incident of bootlegging, the detaining authority could not have formed an opinion that his detention is necessary to prevent breach of public order.

5. This question was considered by this Court in the order dated 26.4.2007 passed in Special Civil Application No.5557/06 in which following observations were made:

> “5.1.Reliance in this regard was placed on the decision in the case of Ashokbhai Jivraj @Jivabhai Solanki v. Police Commissioner, Surat & Ors. reported in 2000(1) GLH 393, wherein the Division Bench placing reliance on an earlier Division Bench decision of this Court in the case of Shamjibhai Manjibhai Patel v. Commissioner of Police, City of Ahmedabad and Anr reported in 1992(2) GLR 1360, observed that cases against the detenu have already been registered and the case would fall under the maintenance of “law and order and not public order”. The Division Bench, therefore, opined that the subjective satisfaction arrived at by the detaining authority was illegal since the detention could have been passed by the authority for maintenance of public order. On this basis, the Division Bench was pleased to quash the order of detention.
> 5.2. Reliance was placed on the decision of Piyush Kantilal Mehta v. Commissioner of Police, Ahmedabad City and Anr. reported in AIR 1989 SCC 491, wherein the Apex Court observed that, may be that the detenu is a bootlegger but only on that count he could not be preventively detained unless his activities affect adversely or is likely to affect adversely the maintenance of public order. In the said case, it was alleged that not only the detenu was a bootlegger, he was indulging in use of force and violence, he was involved in illegal sale of liquor and created an atmosphere of fear and terror by beating innocent citizens. The Apex Court observed that apart from some minor incidents of beating by the detenu the witnesses alleged that the detenu was high handed and fierce by nature. It was held that the detention order cannot be upheld as this would not be a case of adversely affecting public order.

5.3. Reliance was also placed on the decision of the learned Single Judge of this Court in the case of Rajubhai Pratapbhai Panpatil vs. Commissioner of Police, Surat City and Ors. reported in 2006(1) G.L.H. 382, wherein the learned Judge found that mere registration of prohibition offence is not enough to arrive at the subjective satisfaction that the activities of the detenu are prejudicial to maintenance of public order.

5.4. Reliance was placed on the decision of the Apex Court in the case of District Collector, Ananthapur and Anr. v. V.Laxmanna reported in (2005) 3 SCCC 663, wherein the Apex Court observed that mere dealing with arrack or transport or sale thereof by itself would not become an activity prejudicial to the maintenance of pubic order and before ordering detention the authority must be satisfied on material available to it that the arrack dealt with by the detenu is dangerous to public health.

7. Having heard learned advocates for the parties, I find that the contention raised by the learned advocate for the petitioner is required to be upheld. In the present case except for six cases of bootlegging filed against the petitioner there is no further material permitting the detaining authority to come to the conclusion that her activities were prejudicial to the > interest of public order. As noted earlier three out of these six cases were filed in the year 2005, whereas the order of detention was passed in the December, 2006. Quite apart from the time gap in taking into consideration the stale cases, I find that as observed by the Division Bench of this Court in the case of Ashokbhai Jivraj @Jivabhai Solanki v. Police Commissioner, Surat & Ors (supra) mere involvement of a detenu in activities of bootlegging per se would not permit the authority to come to a conclusion that her activities were prejudicial to the public order. This view has also been followed subsequently and is also supported by the decision of the Apex Court in the case of Piyush Kantilal Mehta v. Commissioner of Police, Ahmedabad City and Anr.(supra)."

6. In view of the above legal position, the order of detention cannot be sustained and the same is required to be quashed and set aside.

7. Under the circumstances, the impugned order of detention dated 3.1.2007 is quashed. Since the order of detention is quashed, the detenu shall be released forthwith unless involved in any other criminal case or detention. With these directions, the petition is disposed of. Rule is made absolute accordingly.

Direct service is permitted.
